The most dangerous, hard-hitting undercover investigation on TV

Insider gets the inside story, pushing the extreme limits of the law.

Insider is an investigation format that tells the story from the inside, with a presenter that acts as a special undercover agent. The Colombian international cocaine traffic, the black market for organs, illegal immigration across the Mexican border, dog fighting: every investigation reveals a different part of the world, the dark side left unrevealed by the media.

Rule number one: disguise. In order to infiltrate the presenter creates a new identity: makeup and clothes, but also gestures and accent. Armed with microcameras and assisted only by a hidden operator, the Insider transforms himself into a pusher, cult follower, sex tourist or arms trafficker.

Every episode is self-contained: the office is the key location where the investigation begins and reaches its conclusion. But the Insider's mission is outside, in reality, 24/7, with face-to-face interviews, gathering testimonies. Every clue leads to a new chapter in the story, but danger is always one step behind, and his cover always one false move from being blown: will the Insider pull it off to uncover the truth?
